Anxious Watchers Scan Horizon for Plane from Japan.

DEADLINE ARRIVES

Reports Show Weather Favorable on Final Part of Route.

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 9—Under clouded skies, Seattle watched today for Don Moyle and C. A. Allen, California fliers who left Japan almost two days ago on a non-stop flight from Samushiro beach to this city.

The aviators had not been reported since they were sighted 70 minutes after leaving the beach but in view of the isolated territory over which they would fly and the slowness of communication from these parts, this was not considered alarming.

Scores of cars and hundreds of people crowded Boeing field, where the fliers are expected to land. They had hoped to reach Seattle by noon today. At 12:30 p. m. (3:30 p. m. Marion time) they will have been in the air 48 hours.

Because of a tail wind, aviators here were hopeful their gasoline supply would last longer than the allotted 47 hours.

Although not a word had been received as to their progress since they were sighted off Japan 70 minutes after their take-off, there was little apprehension. The deadline—the hour for their arrival—was drawing near, however. They had expected to reach Seattle in 44 hours or a little more.

Field lights and beacons were turned skyward from Boeing field here, and from the county airport at Tacoma in the early hours. Ships and radio stations from the Aleutian islands to Seattle were on the alert, eager to witness the latter phase of what started out to be the first non-stop airplane flight across the Pacific's breadth.

Interested citizens began to stir here at dawn. A few had arrived at the air field soon after midnight, determined to miss nothing in the event Moyle and Allen sailed in ahead of schedule.

Weather reports had indicated favorable flying conditions over the latter part of their route.

Knowing Moyle and Allen had enough gasoline to remain in the air 47 hours, or until 2:30 p. m (Marion time), the early comers did not voice any anxiety for their safety.

INVENTOR LOSING IN BATTLE FOR HEALTH

Physician Says Edison Definitely Failing; Condition Not Serious Yet.

By The Associated Press

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 9—Despite the opinion of his physician that he is slowly and definitely failing, Thomas A. Edison insists upon getting his oxygen in daily automobile rides and has firmly refused to take any from the tank which is kept in his room.

Dr. Hubert S. Howe, the inventor's personal physician, believes there is no reason for immediate concern.

"When I say that Mr. Edison is slowly and definitely failing," Dr. Howe explained, "I do not necessarily mean that he cannot live. He might surprise us."

Mr. Edison, who suffered a collapse several weeks ago, has been suffering from uremic poisoning, diabetes, ulcers of the stomach and Bright's disease.

"The diabetic condition has practically cleared up," Dr. Howe said, "but the urema is gradually becoming worse and is interfering with his organic functions."

Dr. Howe said he had an oxygen tank placed in Mr. Edison's sleeping room.

"I wanted the oxygen used to give Mr. Edison relief during dizzy spells he has been having lately, but he has firmly refused to take any," the doctor said.

Every day Mr. Edison insists upon taking an automobile ride with Mrs. Edison in an open car.

Charles Edison, his son, while saying that his father was not quite as well as he was a week or two ago, denied that his physical condition has affected his mind.

VETERAN M. E. MINISTER DIES

By The Associated Press

URBANA, O., Sept. 9—Dr. Frank G. Mitchell, 85, athlete, Civil war veteran and 51 years a pastor in the Methodist Episcopal church, died at his home here yesterday.

At the time of his death Dr. Mitchell was the oldest member of the Ohio Methodist Episcopal conference. He retired from the pulpit 20 years ago.

He organized Ohio Wesleyan university's first baseball team and in recognition of that service was awarded a varsity sweater by the university. He was a 33rd degree Mason.

IDENTIFY MAN AS JOE LANG

Clothing and Mirror Clues to Identity of Accident Victim.

WAS MEMORIAL GUARD

Came Here Several Years Ago; Remained After Enlistment Expired.

The body of a man found along the Big Four railroad tracks east of Caledonia Sunday morning was identified this morning as Joseph Lang, 34, of 291 Waterloo street. Identification was made by authorities and Mrs. Lang from clothing worn by Lang and from a small mirror he carried in his pocket.

Clothing Identified

Deputy Sheriff Chester Cosgrove yesterday afternoon recognized Lang's clothing when he went to the Timson mortuary in Caledonia. He brought the clothing to Marion, where Mrs. Lang positively identified it as the property of her husband.

Lang last Friday night told Deputy Cosgrove he intended to go to Cleveland soon to visit an aunt. It is believed that Lang fell from a freight train to his death while enroute to that city.

The body, buried in Caledonia Monday afternoon, may be removed to Marion. Lang is a former employe of the Erie railroad. He leaves a wife and three children.

Lang was in the regular army, and came here several years ago with the honor guard at the Harding memorial. When his enlistment expired, he married and remained here.

RED CROSS TO HELP LOCAL RELIEF WORK

Plans Shift in Policy of Aiding Only in Disasters by "Act of God."

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 — Instructions to local Red Cross chapters under which they may extend unemployment relief next winter were being drafted today at national headquarters.

John Barton Payne, national chairman, was preparing a letter to all Red Cross chapters instructing them to use their own funds for relief of the jobless if distress was not being cared for by other agencies.

The letter will permit the Red Cross to play a big part through its local chapters in preventing distress among the jobless despite the traditional policy of the national organization of confining its efforts to disasters caused by "acts of God."

Chairman Payne explained the instructions would not constitute a change in policy for the national relief organization.

He said it had been the policy of the Red Cross to use national funds only for disasters caused by nature.

The Red Cross head pointed out that local chapters could accomplish much in administering reuef without receiving funds from national headquarters, because most of the money raised in the annual roll call is retained by local Red Cross organizations.

National headquarters receives 50 cents of each annual contribution. The remainder goes to the chapter through which the donation was made.

Officials Accused.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 9—W. G. Tyrell and William R. Bettiher, trustees of Fowler township, Trumbull county, are charged with having obtained a total of almost $1,500 of township funds through the issuance of false bills in a report filed by state examiners with the state bureau of accounting today.

COUNTY COST CUT AIM OF FRIDAY MEET

Tax Group Committee Asks Officials To Attend Session.

GET VARYING ANSWERS

Some Refuse To Attend While Others Give Indefinite Replies.

County officials yesterday received invitations to attend a meeting Friday night in rooms of the chamber of commerce to study means of reducing the 1932 county budget.

Tax committees of the Farm bureau, Grange, Chamber of Commerce and Marion County Taxpayers association have gone over the county budget, and expect to submit to county officials proposals to reduce or eliminate items in the budget. Among the methods advocated is a 20 per cent reduction of salaries of all county officials and employes.

Replies to the invitations, extended verbally, ranged from refusals to one acceptance. Others stated they will attend if a majority of officials express intentions to be present.

Not Public

The meeting Friday night, workers in the tax reduction movement reported, will not be open to the public. A number of proposals for reducing county expenditures will be made by members of the committee.

A lively exchange of words ensued when the committee delivered its invitation to the county commissioners, in session at the Marion county home yesterday afternoon. After nearly an hour of discussion, the commissioners declined the invitation.

The commissioners voiced resentment against what they termed false reports about public expenditures that have accompanied the discussion of tax reduction in the county.

"Why don't you come to the meeting and defend yourself against these reports?" a member of the committee, headed by Milton Morral, a former county commissioner, inquired.

Kinnamon Replies

"I don't have to protect myself against anything," O. W. Kinnamon, president of the board, retorted. "This board conducts itself to the best of its ability, and runs the county as cheaply as it can. We have nothing to protect ourselves against," he declared. "It's going to mean trouble for some one if I can trace the author of these rumors," he added.

"We want you to sit down with

PILOT RUSHES TO AID OF INJURED HELPERS

Gerald Bayles Drops Attempt at Speed Record as Mechanics Are Hurt.

By International News Service

ASHTABULA, O., Sept. 9—Foregoing his opportunity to crack the American land speed record at Cleveland airport, Lowell Bayles, 31-year-old Springfield, Mass., flier, was to arrive here today in a huge transport plane to carry his two injured mechanics back to Springfield for surgical attention.

Although preparing to take the air at Cleveland airport for the record attempt late yesterday, Bayles left there in the plane which won the Thompson trophy race Monday and dashed towards Springfield to obtain the larger plane and return for his aides, who were seriously hurt in a motorcycle accident near here yesterday.

The injured mechanics are Nelson Lundgren, 19, and Harry Jones, 20. Informed by attaches at General hospital here that it would be necessary to amputate their left legs as a result of the accident, both refused permission for the operation, stating they wished to be examined by Dr. Hatt of the Shrine hospital at Springfield.

Hearing of the condition of the youths, Bayles hurriedly left for Springfield, a few minutes before he was to attempt his record dash. He was to return here about noon. Fear was expressed that Lundgren, whose condition is critical, would be unable to make the flight.

Record Broken for Ship-Plane Mail Delivery

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—A mail-laden airplane that was catapulted from the deck of the liner Europa, 1,275 miles from New York landed here at 7:55 a. m. (Marion Time) today in what was believed to be the fastest delivery of transatlantic mail via ship and plane.

The plane, piloted by Joachim Blankenburg, German aviator, effected a saving of approximately 27 hours, for the Europa will not dock here until 11:30 tomorrow morning.

Leaving the deck of the liner at 11 a. m. yesterday about 600 miles from Sydney, Cape Breton island, the aerial postman refueled at Sydney and then negotiated the 675 miles journey to New York with one stop at Bridgeport, Conn., for additional fuel.

TO APPEAL RULING IN OUSTER CASE

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 9—Denied a writ of prohibition in the court of appeals to prevent the common pleas court from hearing a motion for suspension pending disposal of ouster proceedings, Probate Judge Homer E. Bostwick, through his attorneys, planned an appeal to the Ohio supreme court today.

Bostwick's suspension is sought by Newton D. Baker of Cleveland, and Charles S. Druggan, acting as counsel for some 1,600 Franklin county voters who signed a petition charging the jurist with gross misconduct, misfeasance and nonfeasance, and asking his removal.

The case was taken to the appellate court after Common Pleas Judge John R. King held he had authority to hear the suspension motion, the apellate court was expected to suspend judgement long enough to permit the filing of a petition in error in the supreme court.

PHYSICIAN SEEKS AID IN FIGHTING MALADY

BULLETIN

By United Press

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 9—A shipment of the rare fluid, cortin, to aid in saving the life of Mrs. Andrew Nelson of Chicago, started from the laboratories of Dr. F. A. Hartman at 11:27 p. m. today. The cortin was packed in two small cartons and taken by a United Press staff correspondent escorted by Buffalo police, to the Buffalo municipal airport where it was to be placed aboard an American airways plane for Cleveland and Chicago.

• • •

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—Dr. Richard Torpin today sought the aid of scientists and physicians throughout the nation in his search for enough cortin serum to treat a Chicago woman, the mother of six children, stricken with Addison's disease.

The woman, suffering this rare disease which generally proves fatal, is Mrs. Andrew Nelson. Dr. Torpin received word last night from Detroit, where the serum was developed, that no supply was available.

The gland product is derived from the adrenal glands of cattle. Its manufacture requires the glands of 150 cattle for a single day's treatment. Mrs. Nelson should have a weeks' treatment to insure her recovery, Dr. Torpin said.

Addison's disease was first recognized by Dr. Thomas Addison of London. It manifests itself in an exaggerated pigment of the skin, weakness of the heart action, and irritability of the gastro-intestinal tract. The medical profession believes it is of nervous origin.

OFFER FROM BUFFALO

Limited Amount of Cortin Available at University.

By United Press

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 9—Dr. Frederick A. Hartman of the University of Buffalo can have a limited amount of cortin ready at 3 p. m. today for use in saving the life of Mrs. Andrew Nelson, reported dying of Addison's disease in Chicago, he told the United Press today.

"As soon as authorized by the physicians here, we can prepare a limited amount," he said, "and have it ready to leave the Buffalo airport in the middle of the afternoon.

"The substance is very difficult to prepare, but we could supply enough to last two or three days if desired."

Dr. Hartman, whose experiments with cortin have attracted wide attention, said use of the substance would have to be continued indefinitely. Cortin has been quite successful in treating Addison's disease, Dr. Hartman said.

"All our available supplies of cortin have been spoken for. Nevertheless, in view of the fact that Mrs. Nelson is the mother of six children, we are willing in this particular case to make special arrangements to help temporarily. We haven't enough to supply all our patients, so of course other arrangements will have to be made after a few days."

PEN RIOT FOLLOWS KILLING OF CONVICT

Utah Warden Braves Bullets of Prisoners To Save Captive Guards.

By The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 9—Louis Deathridge, serving an indeterminate sentence for robbery, was shot and killed by a guard when he attempted to escape over the wall of the Utah state penitentiary this morning, and in an ensuing riot another convict and a guard were reported to have been wounded.

Deathridge had thrown a hook on the end of a rope over the prison wall and had started to scale a rope ladder when he was foiled by the guard's rifle before he reached the top.

His body was dragged toward a cell house by fellow convicts, who were reported to have obtained arms.

D. L. Ross and C. L. Christensen, guards, were held captive by the convicts until Warden R. E. Davis, braving the bullets of the inmates, persuaded them to release the officers.

ROUND UP ALL TRAIN RIDERS

Officers Here Act on Tip of Killing, Holdup in Speakeasy.

THREE MEN ARE SUSPECTS

Trio Admit Presence in City at Time Crime Took Place.

Sixteen trainriders were taken into custody this morning by city police, deputies of Sheriff C. C. Eye and Erie detectives in a search for two men who were reported to have held up and murdered a speakeasy proprietor in Jamestown, Pa., yesterday.

Eight men giving addresses in many parts of the country were captured and taken to police headquarters for questioning early today, and later eight others were captured. Three attempted to escape, and were fired upon by police. Although eluding officers then, they were later captured.

Early reports stated the murder and holdup occurred at Jamestown, N. Y., but a check through the Associated Press disclosed that no holdup nor murder had taken place there recently. Since the Erie railroad line extends eastward through Jamestown, Pa., it is believed that the reported murder and holdup occurred there.

Act on Tip

Receiving word that the robbers had boarded a west bound Erie freight train, Captain H. E. Cardiff of the Erie police, with the assistance of police and deputy sheriffs met the trains several miles east of the city. The officers lined up on both sides of the track, and as the trains came to a stop, the men were captured as they alighted.

Three of the suspects, when they saw the officers, made their escape into a cornfield under fire of a rifle in the hands of one of the patrolmen. A search of the cornfield failed to reveal the men who were captured later in the morning in the Erie yards.

All of the prisoners, with the exception of the three, denied being in Jamestown. All are being held, however, pending further investigation. While no arms were found on any of the prisoners, several cartridges were found in the possession of one of the men who admitted being in Jamestown.

The three who said they were in Jamestown at the time of the robbery were booked as Joe Vogt, 22, and John Redfro, 25, of New York City, and Herbert Yank, 28, of Lima, O.

The others being held gave their names as Walter Carson, 32, of North Bingham, N. Y., Harry Burnett, 36, of Rochester, N. Y., Frank Ernich, 26, and Carl W. Rawker, 28, of New York City, W. N. and Gene Bracco, Negroes of Philadelphia, Pa., Wilhelm Sturbaim, 23, of Tacoma, Wash., Jack Ashley, 26, of Cincinnati, O., C. L. Clemmons, 28, of Crooksville, O., William Davis, 37, of Detroit, Mich., Clyde Wilson, 35, of Youngstown, O., Earl Turner of Kansas City, Mo., and Orville Shaffer of Bay Bridge, O.

PROPOSE STOPPING CORN, OATS SALES

Iowa Farmers Consider Grain "Moratorium" Until Prices Move Higher.

By The Associated Press

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 9—Iowa farmer grain dealers are trying for a "moratorium" on corn and oats.

The Iowa Farmers Grain Dealers association is proposing to its 600 farmer elevator companies that they make no sales of these grains until higher prices return. Fifteen cents for oats and 30 cents for corn, leaders of the association assert, are not proper returns. W. H. Thompson, secretary of the association, outlined the aim of the movement yesterday when he said that both the old and new crops would be held back "until prices reach a level where the farmer can at least pay the overhead and get through the coming winter."

Leaders of the movement said that Grain Dealers Associations in Nebraska, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Kansas, Minnesota and North and South Dakota would be asked to cooperate.

A delegation of farmers plans to call on Governor Dan Turner Friday to urge him to attempt to set the price of corn at 60 cents a bushel from the day of their interview until Jan. 1.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9—President Hoover turned aside from government business today to pay tribute to the Red Cross as a part of the celebration of the foundation of its first chapter at Dunville, N. Y., 50 years ago, by Clara Barton.

Original Chapter

The Dunsville chapter, known as the Clara Barton chapter No. 1, was organized by Miss Barton herself in 1881. Of that the President said:

Errors Big Help--to Other Team—Aren't They C., D. & M.

PRESBYTERIANS EASE ELECTRICIANS FROM LITTLE WORLD SERIES

No. 2 Church Champs Blast Industrial Leaders from Championship Fight.

Maybe there was a short circuit somewhere or maybe there was some other existing defect but whatever was the cause, the run-scoring power plant of the C., D & M. Electric company was on the blink yesterday afternoon and as a result the First Presbyterians, champions of the No. 2 Sunday school softball league, eased the Electricians right out of the running for the Marion city championship. The final score of the game was 3-1 and it was no fluke victory. This despite the fact the losers outhit the winners by a 7-4 margin.

Don Shoemaker, hurling for the Presbyterians and seeking his second straight Little World series championship, was solved for seven singles by the Electricians but for the most part he kept them well scattered. Gamble, according to the scorebook, hurled a more effective game than did Shoemaker, but regardless of this, the lanky right-hander did not appear to have quite the stuff which Shoemaker displayed

Shoemaker Hurls Well

Though Shoemaker appeared to have a slight edge on Gamble on the hill, it is quite probable the game would still be going on had it not been for fielding errors. Fetter and Staley pulled a double error that allowed two of the Presbyterians runs to scamper across the plate and Kochensperger hooled the ball on another occasion to allow a third score. Oberlander messed up an easy grounder in the seventh that eventually allowed the C, D. & M. to tally its lone counter. In other words, there were four runs scored by both teams, and not a one was earned. But gentlemen, here's the rub. The Presbies got the most and that's what counts. They don't pay off on what might have happened.

Both teams felt the loss of a regular from the lineup Harold Fetter, who recently jumped into the sea of matrimony, was missing from the third base post of the losing nine and Ted Cunningham was not in his regular centerfield post for the Presbies. The forced shifts which resulted from their absence did not help the general calibre of play in the game. In several instances the game appeared rather methodical and lacking the dash usually characteristic of the Little World series competition.

Deserved It

However, the Presbyterians deserved to win, the way the two entries played yesterday. The church champions held a distinct edge in general all around play over the Industrial league champions Now it's the Irish and the Presbyterians Whoole! The boys will shoot the works in this battle Percival. lay out my bullet proof vest.

WELL, who's the favorite now to cop the city softball championship? The C. D. & M. Electric company was until the Presbyterians plastered a 3-1 beating on the Electricians yesterday. Now it's between the Presbies and the Irish. You guess the winner. I'm not going to. I rate them a toss-up

* * *

The Irish and Presbyterians will meet Friday in the next Little world series game. The night game between the House of David and a local organization Thursday prevents a game at Lincoln park Thursday afternoon. If the Irish win then the series will be ended as the green shirts have not yet been beaten and the Presbies have been handed one setback. If the Presbyterians win, the series will be forced into another battle which would come sometime next week.

Oberlander, Presbyterians second baseman almost saw a great comeback go glimmering yesterday when he muffed an easy grounder from Fetter's bat in the seventh to clog the sacks with two men out. good for the No. 2 church champs Oberlander played a great game before this, after some rather ragged performances in earlier series games. However he was not made the goat of the game as only one man scored before Conkle drove his fly to Cantner in center field to end the game.

* * *

Bill Fetter pulled a "Merkle" in the third inning when he went far out of his second base territory into right field in an attempt to nip Gallant's high fly. It was Keller's ball, or should have been, and in the general melee that followed Fetter's error, two men crossed the plate, providing what proved to be the winning margin. But Fetter can't be charged with losing the game single handed.

* * *

Kochensperger, replacing Applegett in left field while the latter filled in for Harold Fetter at third, booted Gallant's double nearly to the left field fence to allow the first run to score in the opening frame. Clean fielding and a good throw would have held Pohler on third without difficulty.

* * *

Applegett proved himself the Handy Andy of the C., D. & M. lineup when he took the place of Harold Fetter at the hot corner. "Hap" handled four chances without an error. He had one putout, and two assists, missing a third assist as Pohler beat out a high bounder in the first inning for a hit. "Hap" grabbed it with one hand but failed by a step to catch the fleeting Pohler at first. So far this series, Hap has played in two outfield posts, at third base and has taken a turn in the pitcher's box. Not so bad, not so bad!

ALL FOR CHARITY

Even the Umpires Pay at Cub-Sox Benefit Game in Chicago.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—Spectators players and club officials laid it on the line today as the Cubs and White Sox met in a charity baseball game at Comiskey park, home of the Sox.

The pass-gate was locked and no one, ushers, refreshment venders, umpires, or anyone else, could get into the park to watch, play or work, without paying admission and the total receipts were to go to Governor L. L. Emmerson's unemployment relief fund

The advance gate amounted to more than $25,000, largely in "premium" reservations for boxes, and contributions from the players themselves, and with about 25,000 more seats, priced at $1 and $1.50 not less than $50,000 was expected to go into the fund. A crowd of 52,000 which would be the largest in Chicago's baseball history was anticipated.

Cleveland Continues in Winning Streak, Stopping Chisox Twice.

Three recruit pitchers have made brilliant debuts in the National league in the last few weeks

Jim Mooney, formerly of Bridgeport, came from nowhere to become one of the New York Giants' aces. Monday Van Mungo stepped up from Hartford to pitch a great game for Brooklyn and now Bill Harris, who just came to Pittsburgh from Fort Worth, has joined them in the high places.

While Mooney was winning his sixth straight game for the Giants, yesterday, Harris pitched his first for the Pirates and won it by a shutout. He allowed the Cincinnati Reds only five hits in a brilliant duel with Jack Ogden and Benny Frey, and earned a 3 to 0 victory.

Not Yet Beaten

Mooney, who has yet to taste defeat in the big league, hurled the Giants to an even break in their doubleheader with Philadelphia Phil Collins downed the Giants for the second time in a row in the opener, besting Hill Walker, 3 to 1.

Mooney, although hit 10 times, was effective in all but one inning of a struggle against Sheriff Blake and scored a run himself in the eighth inning to produce a 4-3 victory.

Another good pitching performance came from Austin Moore of Brooklyn in the remaining National league game. Moore relieved Babe Phelps with the bases full and none out in the first and pitched nine full frames to win 10-6

The outstanding American league mound performance again was left in the capable left hand of Robert Moses Grove of the Philadelphia Athletics Grove set Washington down with seven hits and fanned seven to record his twenty-eighth victory of the season against three defeats. The final score was 10 to 1.

Senators Slipping

The defeat left Washington only one game ahead of the New York Yankees who with Boston, had an off day

Cleveland continued its spurt by taking two games from the Chicago White Sox to make it six victories in three days. The Indians were outhit in both games but came through with a late rally against Bob Weiland to take the opener 8 to 7 then drove Pat Caraway from the hill with a five-run rally in the first inning and won the second game 6 to 3

The St. Louis Browns regained the top place in the second division by a half game margin on the strength of two home runs that beat the Detroit Tigers, 3 to 2

Gauthier Faces Task Building Bishop Eleven

DELAWARE, O., Sept. 9—Loss of practically the entire line and the subsequent problem of building a new one faces Coach George Gauthier as his Ohio Wesleyan football squad begins to drift into the city preparatory to opening practice Thursday morning.

Gauthier still has plenty of backfield material and will need few replacements in those positions, but the line, especially the tackles and ends, is admittedly his biggest worry as he undertakes one of the stiffest schedules in Wesleyan football history.

Bob Jones and Gordon Kraft, his giant tackles of last season, were seniors and thereby are lost this fall Gauthier is banking considerably on Harry Barber, Buffalo, N. Y., a sophomore, to fill one of the posts.

The guards, Gordon Nieberg and Joe Rinnert, have been graduated as well as Dwight Jensen, Ted Osborn and Ezra Bryan, ends Don Jackson, Toledo letterman, George Flint, Syracuse, N. Y., and John Raugh, Altoona, Pa., lettermen of two years ago, may plug up the holes at guard.

The center positions will be in capable hands since Dean Gordon, Johnstown, Pa., of last year's team will be back As well as George Myerly, Danville, Pa., who played in numerous games last season

Among the backs, Gauthier loses only Ervin Carlisle, quarterback; Charles Sausser, halfback, and Elmer Reger, fullback, as well as Eric Gandrup, halfback, who is ineligible.

Halfbacks are numerous. Wilmer Dickerson, who began to shine as the season drew to a close last year, and Roderick Campbell, another letterman, appear to have the inside track.

Carlisle appears to have an able successor to his quarterback post in Robert Given, Steubenville a letterman

The schedule follows Sept 26 open; Oct 3, Heidelberg here; Oct 10, Syracuse there; Oct 17, Denison at Granville; Oct 24, Miami here (homecoming). Oct 31, Ohio at Athens; Nov 7, Brown at Providence, R. I., Nov 14, Wabash here. Nov. 26, Western Reserve at Cleveland.

Bearded Baseball Stars

Above are a few of the baseball stars produced by the House of David baseball team which will play Thursday night at Lincoln park. Grover Cleveland Alexander, former National league pitcher, is not shown in this photograph. He will play here Thursday.

Fans To See First Local Night Ball Game Thursday

Marion baseball fans will have an opportunity Thursday night to take sides on an argument which has been rocking the world of baseball for the last couple of seasons. That is whether night baseball can be played successfully or whether it is merely a novelty that will wear itself out within a few more seasons. Ever since baseball with the aid of incandescents was introduced, arguments have waxed hotter and hotter concerning the merits of the night game.

The House of David baseball game with a team of local district stars will give fans the opportunity to decide for themselves concerning the merits of the game under the Klieg's Carrying portable power plant for lighting the field, the bearded organization of Benton Harbor, Mich., will play at Lincoln park starting at 8 p m

Not only will fans be given the first local opportunity to see a night baseball game but they will get a glimpse of what is probably the best baseball team to cavort on a local diamond in some time. The House of David team, with Grover Cleveland Alexander as manager and pitcher, has compiled an enviable record in its annual barnstorming trip around the country, defeating the leading teams of some of the largest cities of the country. A Lima, O., all-star team was recently defeated by the bearded team in a brilliantly played game.

Local manager Paul Castner has gathered together a long list of stars from the area surrounding Marion. Joe Conroy, a catcher, and Johnnie Marshall, an outfielder are the only two players from the city proper included in the first string lineup. Other players have been recruited from Kenton, Upper Sandusky, Bucyrus, Galion and other points.

DARKNESS CHECKS TRI-COUNTY GAMES

Agosta defeated Essex 8-6 and Marseilles won from Richwood 13-3 Sunday in the Western half tournament of the tri-county baseball league on the Agosta diamond The game between Marseilles and Agosta for the championship of the division was postponed until Sept 13 on account of darkness The winner of this game will meet Caledonia, eastern half winner, in a three-game series to determine the league champion.

The final league standings of the league is as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Caledonia	13	1	.933
Agosta	10	4	.710
Denmark	7	7	.500
Marseilles	6	7	.462
Richwood	3	10	.231
Essex	3	11	.214

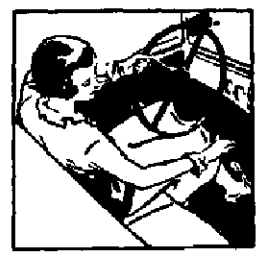
7 REASONS
WHY THE SYNCRO-MESH TRANSMISSION MAKES OLDSMOBILE A GREAT CAR TO DRIVE



1 It eliminates gear clashing—You can shift through all gears . . . from low into second, from second to high, and from high back to second, quickly and silently.

2 It makes shifting easier—Every gear change can be made with a smooth, effortless movement of the gear-shift lever. There is no need for careful "timing."

3 It gives greater flexibility in traffic—You can shift quickly and silently from high back to second without reducing car speed—when you wish to gain the advantage of second gear acceleration.

4 It assures positive control of the car—With the Syncro-Mesh transmission the safety factor is constant, for your car is in gear and under control at all times—instantly subject to the braking power of the engine when you take your foot from the accelerator.

5 It gives extra protection on hills—When descending steep grades, you can shift immediately into "second" . . . to gain extra braking power.

6 It simplifies driving—You can operate the clutch in the usual manner, shift quickly, easily, and silently as the occasion requires, and keep your car in control with a minimum number of "motions."

7 It gives you, in Oldsmobile, a Quiet Second Gear—assuring smooth, swift acceleration which rivals high gear performance in quietness.

Until you drive Oldsmobile, and actually experience these seven vital advantages of the Syncro-Mesh transmission, you can't appreciate how much this feature really adds to driving enjoyment.

The regular payment announced by Western Union yesterday has caused a little more cheerful attitude toward communications issues.

There have been further rumors of selling from aboard in the stock market this week, particularly from London. The German situation, however, continues reassuring, what with the rally in the Berlin Boerse, and the stronger position shown by the Reichsbank in this week's statement.

GRAIN MARKET

WHEAT SHOWS SLIGHT GAIN

Opens Higher, Holds Steady Despite Reported Downturns at Liverpool.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—Grains took their cue early today from firmness shown by securities. Reports that the Liverpool wheat market had been weakened by United States government financed offerings were ignored. Opening ¼ cent off to ¼ up, wheat later held steady. Corn started at ⅛ decline to ¼ advance and afterward kept near the initial range, except that September tended to sag.

A steadying factor as to wheat was general notice taken that the United States government September crop report due tomorrow was likely to indicate no decided change in domestic spring wheat crop estimates. Main interest regarding the report centered on corn, and the government's weekly summary had a bearish flavor, much corn in the west, southwest and east being described as already beyond danger from frost. Wheat bulls gave emphasis to unofficial Kansas advices that seeding was being done on dusty cloddy soil, and that rain was badly needed or acreage reduction would be much greater than had been forecast.

Hungary reported almost 27 per cent of wheat production as compared with last year. The 1931 total Hungarian crop was figured as 61,655,000 bushels, the smallest yield since 1924. A material reduction of Sweden's wheat and rye crops was also announced. Russian advices via Liverpool indicated less exports than last year, and confirmed spring wheat shortage. Oats traders said good oats were scarce.

Provisions reflected steadiness of hog values and of grains.

Capone and Government Draw Nearer Showdown

Judge Permits Withdrawal of Guilty Plea on Liquor Charge; Sets Oct. 6 for Hearing in Income Tax Case.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 9—A showdown between the government and Alphonse Capone was a step nearer today.

This became apparent when the status of the charges against the gang chief was cleared somewhat by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday, in granting Capone permission to withdraw his plea of guilty to an indictment charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. At the same time Judge Wilkerson set Oct. 6 as the date for Capone to go on trial on a charge of income tax delinquencies totaling about $2,000,000.

Lawyer Acts Promptly

Michael Ahern, the gangster's lawyer, moved immediately to quash the liquor indictment, but hearing on this question was continued indefinitely, subject to come up later on five days' notice from either the prosecution or the defense.

Judge Wilkerson, in ruling on the liquor case, filed a memorandum in which he said he allowed the defendant to change his pleas of guilty to not guilty in both charges because of a compromise agreement in which the court could not concur. His reference was to reports that Capone had been promised a short sentence in return for his pleas of guilty, which were current last July when Capone was allowed to withdraw his admission of guilt in the income tax case.

Judge Makes Suggestion

At the time Capone was in court last July 31, when he changed his mind about pleading guilty, Judge Wilkerson suggested that the prosecution attempt to ascertain whether Capone and 68 codefendants named in the liquor conspiracy case could not be indicted under the Jones law which provides heavier penalties than are possible under the conspiracy statute. The grand jury is to report tomorrow, but there has been no announcement of whether any further action has been taken.

The alleged beer business of Capone and his associates is reputed to have reached the amazing figure of $20,000,000 a year. The conspiracy indictment alleged 5,000 separate offenses.

ASK ORDER FOR C., D. & M. SALE

Companies Move to Consolidation of Ohio Insull Interests.

STEP MERE FORMALITY

The state utilities commission today had under consideration the joint request of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co. and the Ohio Electric Power Co. for an order permitting the former company to sell, for $8,353,430, all of its properties used in distributing electric energy and authorizing the Ohio Electric Power Co. to buy these properties, an International News Service story from Columbus said today.

This was verified today by W. P. Mojoney, president of the C., D. & M. Electric Co., who explained that the proposed transaction would be a formality merging the two companies, both of which are owned and controlled by Insull interests.

Will Lose Identity

Since both companies are owned by the Insull utility interests, the transaction would not have the effect of a complete change of ownership.

The C., D. & M. Electric Co. will lose its identity and become the Ohio Electric Power Co., as manufacturers and distributors of electrical energy, if the transaction is consummated. The C., D. & M. Electric Co. however would continue to operate its interurban lines between Bucyrus and Columbus by way of Marion under the present name.

Other Properties Bought

In addition to its interurban railway operations, the C., D. & M. sells electric energy in Crawford, Delaware, Franklin, Marion, Union and Wyandot counties. The Ohio Electric Co. has acquired similar properties near the territory in which the C., D. & M. operates.

The proposed sale would involve the transfer of real estate in the various counties, including the rights-of-way of the interurban line. Rails, ties, switches, trolleys, trolley wires, passenger and freight cars and supplies, however, would not be included in the sale.

DENIES TRICKING DON IN SPEEDBOAT RACE

Gar Wood Defends Action in Harmsworth Trophy Event on Labor Day.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 9—Gar Wood, pilot of Miss America IX in the Harmsworth trophy races, today refuted as "a misunderstanding" statements attributed to him Monday to the effect that he had deliberately drawn Kaye Don, British challenger in Miss England II, over the starting line, causing disqualification of both boats.

Deeply affected by comment which followed the second heat of the race on Monday, in which Wood and Don were disqualified for beating the starter's gun, Wood said the only thing he had in mind was to "beat Don over the line."

"We wanted to get over first," he said. "I had ridden in Don's wash for 30 miles Sunday afternoon, and I knew what it was like. We felt if we got away first, we'd have a chance to keep the lead."

Wood said that he instructed his mechanic, Orlin Johnson, who handles the throttle, to "watch Don and beat him over the line, at any cost." When they saw Don make a start for the line, he said, they speeded up the boat and passed him before the starting line was reached.

"It was this earnest desire on Don's part to get the lead and our determination that he would not get the jump that caused this unfortunate mixup," Wood said.

Wood wept as he discussed the statements attributed to him after the race on Monday, to the effect that he had tricked Don into beating the gun.

Reiterating his statement that press reports had placed a wrong impression on the matter, Wood broke down as he terminated the discussion, and said he "couldn't talk about it any more."

COUNTY BUDGET CUT AIM OF MEETING

us and go over the budget to see if the county expenses can't be cut," Morral stated.

"I've made a study of taxes and possible ways to reduce them for seven years," Kinnamon replied. "The board is always willing to make every possible saving, but has already considered every possible means of cutting the budget, and has not yet found a way to do it satisfactorily," he said.

Kinnamon declared the county levy represents only 23 mills which is a small portion of the total levy.

M. D. Porter, superintendent of the infirmary, also refused to attend the meeting.

"I'm under special investigation right now, brought about by a group of Marion county residents who asked the state bureau of accounting to audit my records," he said.

"When this audit has proven that all my expenditures have been proper, I might talk with you, but not until then," he stated.

Examiner at Work

An examiner from the bureau is now at work in the courthouse checking the records of the county home. Officials have been unable thus far to learn who signed the petition to have the audit made, and to learn the purpose of the audit.

A meeting with a group of township trustees will prevent County Surveyor Cecil R. Leavens from attending, he told the committee.

R. G. Smallwood, who this week became county treasurer, Sheriff C. C. Fye, Earl E. Thomas, county auditor, Everett B. Grigsby, clerk of courts, and Charles A. Markert did not give definite answers when invited, they said today. Auditor Thomas said he would attend if other officials intended to go.

W. T. Niles, superintendent of the Children's home, and Probate Judge Oscar Gast are out of the city this week. Mrs. Addison Bain, matron of the county detention home, stated she will attend the meeting and give the committee every possible service.

ARREST 19 MEN AS SMUGGLERS

Held As Members of Huge Ring Bringing Aliens Into U. S.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—Nineteen men have been arrested in an investigation of a ring which, federal officials say, has smuggled 5,000 foreigners into the United States for fees totalling $20,000,000.

The department of justice and the department of labor have been cooperating in the inquiry for six months. The scheme of the smugglers, officials said, was to charge each alien from $200 to $5,000 to bring him or her to this country and to blackmail them after arrival on threat of deportation.

Revelations were made at the federal district attorney's office yesterday upon arraignment of Benjamin Friedlander, a New York attorney, and Joseph Kogan. They were specifically charged with conspiring to bring an alien into this country from Canada.

FIGHT OPENS FOR LONGWORTH'S SEAT

By United Press

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 9 — Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke, in a speech here last night opened the campaign of J. B. Hollister, wet Republican, for the election to the congressional seat left vacated by the death of Nicholas Longworth.

Jahncke, who for the last two months has set something of a record in the way of political speeches, attacked Democrats for "mud slinging" against President Hoover and prophesied that the opposition party would propose the "dole" system of unemployment relief.

The presence of Jahncke, national committeeman from Louisiana, and generally regarded as an administration spokesman, was taken as an indication that President Hoover and the Republican national committee intends to make a strong effort to retain the Longworth seat, despite Hollister's anti-prohibition stand.

N. Y. CENTRAL FILES APPEAL

Would Stop Passenger Service on Line in Marion District.

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 9—The New York Central railroad today appealed to the state supreme court from an order issued by the public utilities commission July 17, denying its application for leave to discontinue passenger train service between Toledo and Thurston, Fairfield county.

The route passes through Lucas, Wood, Seneca, Wyandot, Crawford, Marion, Morrow, Delaware, Knox and Licking counties.

In its petition, the company declared that the commission had speculated on the volume of passenger traffic to be expected in the future, and had based its conclusions on the expense and revenue figures for 1930 rather than for the three-year period relative to which evidence was introduced.

LEAGUE OFFICIAL'S ACTION PROTESTED

Sportsmen Plan Repudiation of Indorsement of Myers.

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 9—Insisting upon a hands-off policy in the matter of the selection of a new state conservation commissioner, members of the League of Ohio Sportsmen today were planning an official repudiation of the statement of its vice president, Ray Lawrence of Youngstown, in recommending the appointment of I. S. Myers of Akron.

Lawrence's letter to Governor George White, urging Myers' appointment, brought a storm of protest at a meeting of the Central Ohio Anglers and Hunters' club, which is one of the organizations that make up the League of Ohio Sportsmen.

Besides repudiating the action of Lawrence as being without authority, the club instructed its director in the league, Harry N. Katz of Columbus, to insist that the league officially condemn his statement.

WILKINS PREPARES FOR RETURN TO U. S.

By The Associated Press

LONGYEAR CITY, Spitzbergen, Sept. 9—Sir Hubert Wilkins began overhauling and refueling the submarine Nautilus today in preparation for an early return to America, either direct or by way of Iceland.

The chief damage done on his cruise into the Arctic was the breaking of the mast by violent storm. The party expressed satisfaction with the working of its scientific instruments, especially the gyro-compass.

Sir Hubert said today he was satisfied that submarines are ideal for studies in the polar ice. He has accepted an invitation to visit the Island coal mines and it seems unlikely that he would leave before tomorrow. The first stop on the return voyage probably will be Reykjavik.

written a chapter in the worldwide relief of human suffering which is a fitting memorial to Miss Barton and a proud tradition to her countrymen."

The text of the President's remarks follows, in part:

"The beginnings of human enterprises derive their significance from the service which time proves their ability to preform for humanity. The nation joins in your celebrations because of the success of the great, humanitarian agency which sprang from the mind of Clara Barton and the spirit of your community.

"The establishment of the pioneer chapter in the village of Dansville was the forerunner of 3,500 chapters in existence throughout the United States, enrolling at times of national need as many as twenty million members. In its lifetime the Red Cross has raised and expended nearly a billion of money in the relief of human distress. The national organization has become our nation's assurance of adequate, prompt and efficient handling of any catastrophe within our borders. It is the flowering of the spiritual impulse to serve the common need. It represents both the common impulse of sympathetic help and the mechanism for its practical expression. It stands as a monument to individual and local initiative. It proves the ability of a democracy to create from the people themselves the agencies for service.

"More than a century has passed since Clara Barton was born. And it may be well said that the institution was not only founded by a noble woman but it has been carried on very largely by the womanhood of our country. The 50 years which have passed since that pioneer beginning have written a chapter in the world-wide relief of human suffering which is a fitting memorial to Miss Barton and a proud tradition to her countrymen.

"Women's interest in the prevention of suffering and in ministrations of mercy to those in sickness, peril and need, is the foundation of the Red Cross organization which has been fittingly described as 'the greatest mother of them all.' To Miss Barton, Miss Mabel Boardman, and the many thousands of other devoted women, in all localities of this broad land, the cause of prompt, effective and sympathetic alleviation of suffering and distress owes its debt of gratitude and remembrance. To the men who give their service—of whom there is no greater example than Judge Payne—I also pay tribute.

"It is my privilege, on behalf of the nation, to acknowledge the debt, both to the pioneer founders of the organization and to their successors who are carrying on today."

TRACE ACTIVITIES OF CLARKSBURG SLAYER

Letters Pour Into Police Chief, Citing Correspondence with "Love-Broker."

By The Associated Press

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 9—Letters coming in from women all over the country are being traced by Clarksburg police in the hope they will throw new light on the identity of Harry F. Powers, 42-year-old matrimonial agent, who has confessed slaying two women and three children.

More than a score of letters were received yesterday by Chief of Police Clarence Duckworth.

One letter, signed "a young widow" from Erie, Pa., told of a call made on her by a man who gave his name as Roscoe Payne. He told her, she wrote, that Cornelius O. Pierson, lock box 277, Clarksburg, W. Va., could get her a "good job." He also advised her to write to box 100, Detroit.

Later she wrote, she received two letters from Pierson in which he inquired about her funds and her family. She ceased corresponding. Powers used the alias, Cornelius O. Pierson.

A Buffalo, N. Y., woman who did not sign her letter, said she had corresponded with Powers in 1925. He gave his address as Crestline, O., and Mansfield, O., the writer said. She received his picture and two letters.

Mrs. Jessie Shirron, of Jackson, Miss., wrote that she was sure Powers operated in that state a few years ago. She suggested inquiry should be made in East Chicago, Ind.

Pattern 2185

One of the oldest and best rules about children's clothes is the rule about simplicity, and a little frock like this proves that however practical a frock may be, simplicity need not be achieved at the expense of style. The lines are so simple that the frock can be made in a few hours, yet there are such important grown-up style features as the suggestion of the bolero in seamings, and the use of color contrast Matching bloomers accompany this frock

Obtainable only in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 4 requires 1¾ yards of 36 inch material, ¾ yard of 36 inch contrasting. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern

"PARTY HUSBAND" OPENS THURSDAY AT OHIO THEATER

Dorothy Mackaill, whose brilliant characterization of an "office wife" brought her plaudits, will be seen as the star of "Party Husband," which opens Thursday at the Ohio. The story is a comedy-drama of modern married life

Dorothy Mackaill

Miss Mackaill plays the part of a sophisticated bride who means to keep her individuality, to take a position in the business world and to associate with whomsoever happens to take her fancy for the moment. In this she is abetted by her husband who sincerely believes that wedding ties should not cramp one's style and that both goose and gander may partake of the same spicy sauce. Jay, played by James Rennie, is to be strictly a party husband and Laura a party wife

The story is an adaptation of the novel by the same name by Geoffrey Barnes. It is directed by Clarence Badger and sets and photography add much to the picture There is a proper dash of humor and enough humanity to counteract the sophistication with which the story deals

"MOTHER'S MILLIONS" OPENS AT MARION

The story of a woman of wealth and the rearing of her two children combined with a love romance furnish the plot for "Mother's Millions," which opened today at the Marion theater

May Robson, James Hall, Frances Dade, Lawrence Gray and Edmund Breese are headliners in the cast.

Miss Robson gives a fine performance as the penurious woman financial giant whose one thought is for the future welfare of her children. The theme of the story is that of a mother's love hidden through fear of her enemies' attempt to reach her and hurt her through her children. In doing this she must appear to treat her children with a coldness and aloofness that threatens to ruin their happiness and kill the romance in their lives How she eventually understands and rewards their loyalty gives to the picture its poignant sense of drama

ERIE POLICE HOLD TWO MEN HERE

Harry Mayz and Edward Lorrain, picked up by Erie police in the railroad yards yesterday afternoon, were taken to the county jail pending the payment of a $10 fine each on charges of train riding. In the meantime H. E. Cardiff, captain of the Erie police, is making an effort to locate the source of the between 40 and 50 packages of cigarettes found in their possession by the police. Three stories, each one different from the other, were told by the men to where they had obtained the "smokes."

Daily Proverb—"He hath made good progress in a business that hath thought well of it beforehand."

The federal government cotton estimate is 15,665,000 bales, the highest September cotton forecast since 1915. The cotton growers evidently have planned to secure a little federal "relief."

A writer points out that noise and power are not synonymous. If any one questions the truth of this, let him note the relative disturbance made by a new and up-to-date machine and the $10 wreck of a model of 1915.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler says that "our nation must go ahead or go to pieces." However, we get from occasional utterances by the doctor that he feels that light wines and beer might possibly hold us intact for a while.

It's a sad state of affairs that jobs created by the state to reduce unemployment are handed out on the recommendations of cheap ward politicians. Must politics be injected even into governmental philanthropy?

Speaking in celebration of the seventieth anniversary of the Battle of the Marne, Jacques Louis Doumesnil, French air minister, told his hearers that "France has already reduced her armament to a position consistent with her security." In one form or another, French officials have stated that so consistently that they themselves probably are beginning to believe it.

Tabulation of all available figures, Tuesday, showed a death toll as the result of accidents, chiefly motor, over the week-end and the holiday of more than 150. How much longer will the American people be willing to sacrifice their lives in the pursuit of what is ordinarily denominated pleasure?

Uruguay has cut in half the recent tariff increases enacted by her on goods from Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Belgium, but the full increase still stands against goods from the United States, her theory being that she should buy from those who buy from her. Well, that's one way of bidding for reciprocity.

Even one not always inclined to agree with Heywood Broun may concur in his view when he says that "it isn't the crime wave which terrifies me so much as the undertow," meaning the "mass of fool plans and suggestions which are being poured into the papers." There's no escaping the conclusion that some of them, at least, may well be listed among the remedies worse than the diseases they are offered to cure.

It's always possible that the explanation of the French and Italian announcements, that they would not compete in the Schneider cup contest unless the date for it is postponed may be the announcement that a British plane had shown a test speed of 405 miles an hour. It's no snap even to imagine a plane moving at the rate of 6¾ miles a minute.

Care in School Zones.

Five thousand, eight hundred and ninety-two pupils were enrolled in the Marion public schools, Tuesday, and the expectation then was that the number would exceed 6,000 today.

The reassembling of the schools should cause all motorists to exercise the utmost care when driving past the various school buildings. During the vacation months many motorists doubtless have fallen away from the habit of being especially alert when traveling through school zones. For the last three months there was no particular reason why they should have differentiated school zones from any other sections of thoroughfares, but now, with 6,000 pupils entering, playing about and departing from school buildings, there is need that they should resume the exercising of vigilance in this regard. The considerate motorist will do so, and they are in the overwhelming majority. The reckless, the potential murderers, of course, will not unless they are compelled to do so. The city authorities should see to it that they are compelled. They might well give more attention also to the motorists who crash red lights and block street and alley crossings, but let us get back to the school situation.

The burden of care, it is well to remember, is not wholly on the motorists. The pupils of the schools must do their share in exercising care to obviate the danger which they encounter as a result of motor traffic. For years it has been drilled into them in the school room, especially in the lower grades, but it should not stop there. Parents should carry on the campaign of education looking to the avoidance of tragedies in street traffic. They may be better educators in this regard than the teachers in the schools. In any event, any education which will work for the safety of the school youth is to be commended. It's a matter in which the great, overwhelming element of our citizenry is interested.

Criticism of King George.

There is an old saying to the effect that you can't please everybody. And it is a fact: you can't. There are always those ready to criticize one's course; generally some to question one's motive, and this is notably true in the world of government.

By way of illustration, it might have been assumed that the people of Britain would be as one in approving the request of King George, that his pay be reduced as a part of the plan of the coalition cabinet to rescue Britain from the financial difficulties in which she finds herself. To this end, the king asked that £50,000, approximately a quarter of a million dollars, be sliced off his salary. It may be well to say in passing, that the Prince of Wales asked that £10,000 be cut from his salary and that Premier Ramsay MacDonald requested a reduction of £1,000 in his salary of five times that amount.

The criticism directed against the king is not that the sum he asks taken from his salary is not sufficiently large. As a matter of fact, the sum he offers to give up for the country's welfare will mean considerable denial for one in his position, if not more than that. While it is true that his income from various sources is ordinarily something like $2,500,000 a year, about nine-tenths of this amount goes to maintaining and operating properties which must be retained as going institutions, especially at a time when unemployment is great, to charities which he is as good as obligated to meet, to voluntary philanthropy and to the expense of operating his household. It is said that, the giving up of this quarter of a million dollars will leave him little, if any, over $10,000 a year as spending money, and that will mean a more pittance for the many obligations one in his position is required to meet. There are thousands of men in the United States who are drawing salaries of $10,000 a year, thousands drawing considerably more, who are dissatisfied with their salaries, feeling that the pay they are receiving is not commensurate with their ability and the value of the services they are rendering.

Nor is the criticism directed at King George based on the hypothesis that the sacrifice he offers to make is too large. The criticism, which comes from the British Labor party, is that he should not have asked that his salary be cut at all. The British king, as is known, is looked upon as a model for the British people. What he does is—at least, it long has been—accepted as what is right. The British Labor party holds that King George has simply, by his example, led the way for a cut all the way down the line and that, as a result, it will work in support of a plan to cut the wage of labor. In fact, it would not be at all surprising were the charge made that he has thus made of himself the "tool of capitalism."

From all one reads and learns of King George, it would be hard—it would be next to impossible—to believe that he ever has been or ever will be the tool of any element of the British people. It would be equally difficult to believe that his request for salary reduction was prompted by any other than the finest motive—that of working relief to Britain and the British people. But no matter how fine the motive—as we may glean in this case—it is never beyond some criticism. There will always be those who will question, as we have said; always those who will criticize.

Anyway, Sir Hubert Wilkins has demonstrated that one way not to seek the North pole is by the utilization of a submarine.

Not an Incentive to Pride.

The Harmsworth trophy remains in America, but the outcome of the contest which ended Monday, when the British entry went to the bottom of the Detroit river, was not one to fill Americans with pride.

Angered because Kaye Don would not agree to a forty-five-minute postponement of the start while he had a leak in a gas tank permanently repaired, Gar Wood, the American speed boat builder and racer, tricked Don into a false start by sending the Miss America IX across the starting line more than the five seconds permitted ahead of the starter's gun. At the first turn, Don's Miss England II, which was easily five lengths behind the Wood boat in crossing the line, was caught by the wash of the latter and overturned.

The day before, the British boat won the first race easily, making a speed in excess of eighty-nine miles, the fastest speed ever made by a hydroplane in competition, and demonstrating her right to recognition as the fastest vessel afloat. In fact, the veteran, Wood, is quoted as admitting that the entry driven by him was outclassed by the challenger.

Kaye Don might have shown himself a better sportsman had he agreed to the postponement without regard to the trouble and expense it would have cost him, but American sportsmen can hardly regard highly the tricking of him into a false start, especially when that false start resulted, even though utterly without thought of that result by the one tricking him, in the accident which made impossible the carrying home of the trophy by the pilot of the faster boat.

Most sportsmen would have preferred the loss of the trophy won in England by Gar Wood and brought to this country eleven years ago.

The annual death toll in the United States as the result of appendicitis is estimated to run somewhere between 15,000 and 20,000, figures from sixty of the larger cities showing an increase in deaths from 13.2 in 1910 to 15.1 to the 100,000 in 1930. Another field pressing for thorough investigation.

Although it is doing an excellent business, the Mercantile State bank, of Philadelphia, will pay its depositors and go out of business. The explanation is that, having already been held up twice this year, its owners "are tired of carrying on a business for the benefit of robbers." A sad reflection on the times!

The Pot Still Malt Distillers' association, of Scotland, has voted to recommend a further drastic reduction in manufacture of Scotch malt whisky. It may be assumed that Volsteadism over here has cut the demand, but such is not the assigned reason. It's the duty of twenty-two shillings, about $15, a gallon imposed by Great Britain.

Editorial Opinion.

THE BUDGET DEFICIT.

The federal government finished the last fiscal year with a deficit of $900,000,000. In the first two months of the new year since July 1 it has incurred a deficit of nearly $400,000,000. If the present rates of income and expenditure obtain we shall have a deficit of $1,800,000,000 by next July 1, but it is not likely to be quite that bad.

As every government in the world today is realizing, there are only three ways of meeting deficits—increasing revenues, cutting expenditures or borrowing. Most countries have adopted a combination of all three methods as the soundest means of breaking even. So far the United States has taken the easiest course—further borrowing.

There are strong arguments for this course, to be sure. It is contended that government should not slash expenditures, for that will merely increase unemployment and lower the vitality of business. Yet without a check-rein on public spending a burden of debt will be piled on the nation which ultimately will weigh heavily on business and individuals.

Some compromise should be possible. The President has instituted economies in all departments, but the savings have been small. These economies may well be extended in all non-essential services of government, excepting public works which employ large numbers of men.

The vast payments on the national debt can be postponed for the present to good advantage. In twelve years the federal government has paid off $8,000,000,000 of debt. This was a sound policy through prosperous years, but since we are $5,000,000,000 ahead of the schedule of amortization planned by congress we can afford to delay until business recovers.

For additional revenues, heavier income taxes appear undesirable psychologically. Legalization of beer and perhaps light wines is the most pleasant way of increasing revenue, but it is uncertain how much income could be obtained by that device.

Even more imperative than these restrictions of expenditure and expansion of revenue is the need for a rigid policy against new extravagance. When the congress meets there will be demands from its spendthrift element for a dole to unemployed, to veterans and to any other large groups who will vote for congressmen next year. Whatever our policy on the budget and means of balancing it, we can not afford another billion-dollar congress like the last.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

What Will Better Marion?

The following are the answers of a number of citizens to the question, "What Will Better Marion?"—the second in the questionnaire circulated by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer to get a comprehensive insight into the community feeling regarding our home city, in the hope of arriving at a remedy for handicaps, if any, from which Marion may suffer.

Start an educational campaign to—

1.—Get people back to thrift habits and to budget their expenses as they did twenty years ago.

2—Create better civic pride for their home city.

3.—Encourage people to own their own homes.

4.—Support local charity. A better spirit of forbearance and less criticism on the part of the laboring classes against industry.

Understanding our neighbors' problems which are like our own.

Trying to cooperate for the public welfare, eliminate personal interests.

Give governmental officials all possible assistance in performing their duties and enforcing the laws.

Individual interest in choosing capable officials for elective offices.

Boost Marion, Ohio, Marion products, Marion people.

Essentials to Health.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Most doctors advise and constantly stress the importance of vegetables in everybody's diet. Perhaps the very frequency of the advice is the reason it is so often neglected. We resent what we hear too frequently.

Vegetables are the basis of good nutrition. They are the foundation of good health. They are important at all ages, but children should have every day an abundant supply of this food.

Vegetables carry the vitamins. These substances are of great importance in the maintenance of nutrition and vigorous health.

Vitamin A is regarded by the authorities as the most important of all the known vitamins. Without it children become susceptible to certain infectious diseases. It has its place, too, in the preservation of health in adults.

Lack of this vitamin produces unpleasant eye symptoms, commonly known as "ophthalmia." It may even produce blindness and complications of lesser importance.

A particular form of eye disturbance caused by lack of this vitamin is known as "night blindness." In this condition there is difficulty in seeing in poor light.

Green vegetables such as spinach, radishes, water-cress, lettuce and fresh fruits contain vitamin B. It is found also in peas, beans and glandular organs of animals, notably the liver and kidney.

Vitamin B is particularly valuable in the prevention of a disease known as "beri-beri." Persons deprived of fresh fruits and vegetables may become victims of this disease.

Another vitamin found in vegetables is that known as vitamin C. This acts as a means of protection against the disease known as scurvy.

In addition to its presence in vegetables, vitamin C is abundant in the citrus fruits, lemons, oranges, grapefruit, etc. It is found in tomato juice and, to a certain extent, in potato juice.

No meal is complete without the presence of at least one vegetable. In addition to supplying the necessary nutritive elements, it aids in making your food more tempting and palatable.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

CURLEY. Q—What do you advise for pimples?

A—Proper diet and proper elimination should not only help to clear the complexion but should benefit the system in general. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelops and repeat your question.

* * *

MISS S. Q—Will yeast, taken three times a day, have a tendency to add to the weight?

A—Yeast is not fattening in itself, but with the increased health due to the improvement in general you may put on weight.

* * *

MISS D.A.U. Q—I am a blonde, but my hair is turning darker—what would you advise?

A—This is natural. Careful shampooing, using a good, pure soap and rinsing carefully should tend to keep the hair healthy and lustrous. Be sure that the hair has plenty of air and sunlight.

* * *

S.K.V. Q—What causes red spots on my face—they usually appear after washing and later disappear. I am a young man of twenty-two.

A—This may be due to a form of eczema. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

S. L. Q—Would an all-buttermilk diet—for one month, no other food—be injurious to the health? Is it reducing?

A—It is never wise to attempt a drastic diet unless your physician so advises. The buttermilk diet might not prove injurious and would probably prove reducing to some extent but your doctor should advise you definitely along these lines.

* * *

M. Q—What would you advise for granulated eyelids?

A—Application of one per cent. yellow oxide of mercury ointment applied to the eyelids every night, and bathing the eyes with a weak solution of boracic acid several times during the day should give relief.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Synthetic Diamonds.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The human race has always desired to find some short cut to wealth. Throughout the ages the passionate aspiration of the alchemist was to effect the transmutation of metals—to change lead, say, into gold. Another aspiration has been to make precious stones synthetically. This aspiration has persevered in modern times—not so much to gain great wealth, as to discover the chemical secret of the manufacture or synthetic production of precious metals or precious stones.

The name, Moissan, will always be identified with the synthetic production of diamonds. Moissan succeeded not only in reproducing the diamond artificially, but also in obtaining many binary compounds of the metals and non-metals, previously unknown. These discoveries have proved of economic use, although the diamonds Moissan made are too small to have any commercial value. His discoveries regarding the mode of formation and properties of certain substances have proved of value to geologists in working out the history of the earth and its probable age.

Henri Moissan holds a place in chemistry second only to Berthelot, among the chemists of that day. He was born, on September 28, 1852, in Paris, where he spent virtually his entire life. He was of southern origin, full of vivacity and energy. He received his instruction in chemistry chiefly at the Museum of Natural History. In addition, he attended the School of Pharmacy, with which he was connected for almost twenty years, first as assistant and afterward as professor of toxicology.

Moissan was a pathbreaker in chemistry. He once said that his truest joy was "to plough a new furrow; to have full scope to follow my own inclinations; to see on all sides new subjects of study." One of his earliest papers, on compounds of chromium, was so complete as to be of permanent value.

One of his most valuable discoveries was the method of isolating flourine, which amounts to the discovery of elementary flourine. Not a few chemists considered this discovery a lucky accident. But this is not only a mistake, but does a great injustice to Moissan. The discovery of flourine was the culmination of a long series of researches lasting over a period of years.

This work on flourine naturally led to the electric furnace. A meteorite was found which contained small crystals of diamond embedded in the metallic iron. Moissan suspected that the carbon had originally been dissolved in the iron when it was in a molten state. In order to get sufficiently high temperatures for reproducing this process Moissan invented the electric furnace. A current of 100 to 125 amperes at fifty or sixty volts was employed in his earlier researches. The inventor succeeded thus in manufacturing tiny diamonds, synthetically. Shortly before his death in 1907 Moissan was awarded the Nobel prize in chemistry.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Ohio's First Native Governor.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Among other claims to distinctions to which Belmont county adheres is that of having given the state the first native governor, Wilson Shannon. As in all new states, the officials must, at first, and until a new generation has come forth, be selected from the ranks of the people who have been born elsewhere, and have come there to organize a new government.

Shannon was the son of a pioneer, and knew the hardships of life on the frontier. He was born February 24, 1802—the year of the organization of Ohio as a state, and his birthplace, Mt. Olivet, is not even carried in the list of postoffices of the state now, having probably been wiped out by the establishment of rural delivery. A log cabin was the domicile of his parents.

When this baby was not quite a year old, in January, 1803, his father went hunting and while far from home in the deep woods, he was caught in a heavy snow-storm, followed by severe cold weather. He lot his way and exhausted sat down by the side of a large tree and froze to death. His body was found there several days afterward by a party of rescuers in search of him.

Shannon was educated at Ohio university, Athens, and at Transylvania college, Kentucky, and had the advantage of studying law in the office of Charles Hammond, one of the most noted lawyers in early Ohio, and soon became eminent at the bar himself. Entering politics, he became the candidate of the Democrats for governor and in 1838 defeated Joseph Vance, the Whig candidate. Two years later Tom Corwin defeated him, but Shannon was no quitter. He demanded his right to a second trial and two years later he was again elected governor.

In 1852 he was sent to congress and was one of the four Democrats from Ohio who voted against the Kansas-Nebraska bill. President Pierce appointed him governor of Kansas, and resigning the office in 1857, he took up the practice of law at Lawrence, in that state, where he died in 1877. His grave is at that historical place.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Sept. 9—Anyway, the midget market is booming. Not since Barnum presented General Tom Thumb, has there been such a demand in the amusement world for "the strange little people." Few midget actors are at liberty and circuses find such performers have increased drawing power this year.

Movie temples, presenting midget acts with feature films, report them a sure-fire draw. For many years midgets were offered merely as human freaks by side shows, but today they are singing, dancing and portraying boisterous comedy as well as dramatic roles.

The majority of midgets come from the mountainous areas of middle Europe, chiefly Austria and Germany. Science advances a theory that the biological reason for their smallness is due to defective thyroid glands in their parents. But science is not certain. It rarely is.

Anyway, it is discovered that sympathy, in most instances, is wasted on midgets. Few who would exchange places with normally developed men and women. Rather do they glory in their diminutiveness. Furthermore they are surprisingly healthy and happy. And invariably thrifty.

While the giant is conscious of his size the midget seldom is. He has very little timidity about appearing in public nor does he mind being stared at. Instinct productive of matrimony are minimized, but when midgets marry they are often parents of fully proportioned children.

A California college fullback is the reputed son of midget parents. The midget is often testy. He does not particularly care for the term midget—although it is the name used in medical books and other treatises on the subject. He prefers to be called a Lilliputian.

* * *

I am told, too, that Lilliputians are heavy users of tobacco and that it does not affect them as the average smoker. A theatrical manager tells of a midget in one of his companies who smoked a dozen or more fiercely black cigars a day with a pipe between times. He weighs but forty-nine pounds.

* * *

Contrariwise, midgets are highly susceptible to the punch in alcohol and rarely touch intoxicants. Several years ago a midget suddenly appeared at the roaring corner of Forty-Second and Tenth avenue and began to direct traffic. Such a crowd collected that a policeman took him to a station-house. He fell asleep in a chair and when awakened it developed he had had a single small glass of beer in the neighborhood—and drew a blank.

Another cloud piercer is in excavating stage in my part of town and I'd like to be away until it is finished. From two workshop windows during my time in New York, I have watched various gradations of skyscraper constructions—the Woolworth tower and the silver pinnacled Waldorf. Glancing up from my typewriter to see such gigantic endeavors makes my puny efforts doubly depressing. Often I've had to yank down the blinds to finish my chore.

* * *

I like the late Clare Briggs' facetious optimism about his daily stunt. Often he would cash in at our poker game, stretch and, stifling a bored yawn, sigh: "Well, I must gallop to the drawing board and show up a few of the old masters." Some times I think he did.

* * *

The other day I inquired the fate of silver flasks. I had not seen one for months. Many manufacturers have written in there is still a market and one has grown extraordinarily ambitious and improved his product. Says he: "Our thermos flask absolutely removes that delicately tepid taste that comes from being carried on a warm hip." Hotch-Potchie!

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Sept. 9—Around election time in Memphis, Tennessee, they sing a song about Ed Crump, who comes to Washington in December to represent the Memphis district in the house of representatives.

Crump, one-time mayor of Memphis, county trustee and leader of a political organization famed in Tennessee as "Little Tammany," is holding his first public office outside of Shelby county. Rumor has it that his seat in congress is the result of chance.

Dissension in the ranks of his own organization as to who should contest the seat is accredited with prompting Crump to make the race himself.

* * *

No orator, he dislikes to make speeches and probably has made fewer than half a dozen during all his career. He is most effective behind the scenes.

While he was mayor of Memphis the story is told that he would frequently appear at night in some office where he spied a light burning, turn it off and remind the negligent party the next day.

He has the reputation of never forgetting a person once he has met him. He carries a notebook in which he jots down the names of people he meets. Then he goes back to his office and commits them to memory.

Crump campaigns in Shelby county have a flavor of their own. His street band blares his campaign song from one end of Memphis to the other.

It was used years ago in celebration of a Crump victory and has been a feature of all his campaigns.

Crump, if he is not himself a "showman," at least knows how to set the stage. Long experience in politics has taught him the value of such trappings as campaign songs and brass bands.

He uses them effectively. After all, a vote is a vote whether it is won by a bass drum or a bit of polished oratory.

* * *

He is the type of person who takes little. But his temper is well known, and he has used his fists in an argument.

The Crump organization has been assailed by its opponents of all sorts of things, but the personal integrity of the man himself never has been challenged.

He neither smokes nor drinks. Milk is his favorite beverage, and several times a day makes his way to a restaurant for a glass.

When he retired as mayor of Memphis he was a comparatively poor man. Since that time, however, he has built up a fortune.

First Guess Probably Wrong; Just Bad Break

WHETHER intended as a gift for the police department or just merely an unlucky break, are questions that confronted Desk Sergeant Ora DeWeese last night, when a lard can containing bottles of beer all nicely packed in ice, rolled from a passing automobile lighting in the street in front of police headquarters.

While the driver of the car continued on his way, unmindful of hard luck that had befallen his cargo, the members of the police department placed the can among their souvenirs in the "trophy" room at headquarters.

BIG FOUR RAILROAD CUTS DIVIDEND RATE

Large Eastern Trunkline Makes Second Reduction Within Last Year.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—The New York Central Railroad company today reduced the quarterly dividend from $1.50 to $1, marking the second reduction in the dividend rate this year.

A reduction from the $6 annual rate had been expected in Wall Street. The $6 rate was established May 1 last, with the payment of a quarterly dividend of $1.50, and marked a reduction from the $8 basis which had been in effect from Aug. 1, 1927. The $8 rate was an increase from $7 effective Aug. 1, 1923, after payment at $5 during the previous eight years.

The announcement of the reduction in dividend early in the year had a disturbing effect upon the stock market, for it was not expected at that time, and it was the first of the leading trunklines to take such action.

The company announced salary reductions ranging from 10 to 20 per cent, effective Oct. 1. The statement said:

"Those receiving over $500 and less than $1,667 per month will receive a 10 per cent. reduction in salaries. Those receiving $1,667 and less than $3,350 will have their pay reduced 15 per cent. per month. Those receiving over $3,350 will have their salaries reduced 20 per cent. per month, effective Oct. 1, 1931.

"In view of the continuing loss of earnings due to the diminution in the volume of passenger and freight traffic, the board of directors of the New York Central decided on this reduction which is one-half per cent. less than the dividend paid on Aug. 1, last."

The $4 annual basis established today is the lowest for this leading eastern trunkline since 1914, in which year it paid only $3.75 a share. The common stock sold yesterday and today at $80.37 a share, the lowest of the century.

Faces Veriteen With the ...l Revision of Her Act.

...S fully an hour before my ...h curious wonder as to ...between Lillian and Dicky ...d me to go to sleep. And, ...Lillian's hand upon my ...wakened me the next ..., my first thought was a ...o insistent that I had to ...yself back from voicing it. ...he worlds would I have let ...scure the curiosity which ...gnawing me. I tightened my ...on the determination to ...ain vigilantly in the time ...ained before my departure ...chy for our week-end ...e sojourn lest any hint of ...ntal questioning should ...Lillian.

"...o'clock old dear!" Lillian ...erily. "You will just about ...e to have a petit dejeuner ...s before Phil gets here. I ...Katie make it as strong ...pot French article. Then ...n't spoil the farewell lunch ...anning for you. Anybody'd ...ou were going for a round-...'s flight to see Katie's cutin-...gurations."

...Katie's way of expressing ...ections," I said. "She always ...es affection into pastries ...ads."

Double Translation

...made a double translation ...Lillian grinned. "Don't ...dream yet!" sharply, as I went to the closet for my gown. "Katie's bringing your coffee and rolls right away. You'll just have time for your shower. You can dress afterwards."

Katie was in the room arranging my tray when I returned from my bath. Her face was drawn down to the doleful miles which she considers the proper expression for any leave-taking, but I saw that she was bubbling over inside with some unusual excitement and that her dolorous countenance was only a mask.

"You go vay from your Katie," she said, with the corners of her mouth drawn downward.

"Yes Katie, I'm going right after luncheon," I said.

"You not go too qveeck," she said anxiously. "I feex nice looneh for you. I want you take time eet it."

"I wouldn't hurry over one of your special lunches, Katie," I told her, smiling, "for anything in the world."

"I know dat, eef you by yourself," Katie retorted, "but Meester Graham, he something else again. Ven he starts somevere he vant go eef Price of Wales' cook had feexed looneh."

"But, Katie," Lillian interposed smiling indulgently at my little maid, "the cook of the Prince of Wales wouldn't be in it with you in Mr. Graham's estimation, and I can promise you that both Mr. and Mrs. Graham will do full justice to your lunch, so run along now."

"And sell my papers, I suppose," giggled Katie, whose knowledge of American slang is only equaled by her propensity to use it upon all occasions.

"Exactly," Lillian said, but after the door closed upon Katie. "And now, girl, I don't want to hurry you, but old Phil will be here at eleven, you know, and the Lord only knows how long he'll stay mulling over that third-act revision. And you want to be dressed ready for your trip before he comes."

She wanted to hurry me away. She wanted no chance of delay in my departure after luncheon. In my determination to voice no question concerning her pact with Dicky, I said the first thing which came into my mind.

"I'll hurry," I promised, "but what do you suppose is the matter with Katie; she's bubbling over inside over something"

"She probably saw a new movie thriller last night and is revising her 'de-tec-a-tif' course," Lillian said easily—abit too easily. Suddenly I knew that whatever secret pact Lillian and Dicky had, Katie was aware of it. But I let no hint of my belief escape me. Instead I laughed, as all of us always do, at Katie's belief that she is a born "de-tec-a-tuff" and that the absurd correspondence detective course in which she once invested several of her hard-earned dollars has made her a super-sleuth.

"Look out she doesn't get a notion into her head that there is a kidnaping plot against me while I'm gone," I cautioned.

"As your mother-in-law says, 'I wouldn't put it past her'," she said, "but don't waste any more time on Katie. Drink your coffee and eat your croisants."

She patently wished to get Katie out of my mind and, with the conviction deepening upon me that something quite important to me was afoot, I obediently discussed my petit dejeuner and afterward dressed for my trip as Lillian had told me to do. It was with the gratifying knowledge that down to my last hairpin I, with my luggage, was ready for my week-end trip with Dicky, that I went downstairs to the library when Philip Veriteen was announced. In my hands I carried the mechanically perfect manuscript which Dicky had had typed for me and as I walked into the room where Mr. Veriteen was waiting for me, I forgot all my childish curiosity concerning the secret which Dicky and Lillian were sharing, in my tense query as to what the great producer would say to my third act as I had revised it.

Jubilee's Pardner

• • •

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

TODAY was Wednesday and still coolish when I got up and let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth and got into my short britches. The nights are coolish but the days are warm, but I bet it won't be long before we are skating instead of swimming.

I would like winter if I didn't have any cows to milk every morning and night. It isn't any fun getting out of a warm bed with a warm dog in it and going out and milking a couple of dummed brutes when it is so cold a fella's breath looks like smoke and his hands feel like clubs.

When I had milked the cows and the bunch were all there, even Feeble and Younise and Maggie who do not come so often since the twins came to Feeble's house. We all got in behind the cows and went out to the pasture behind them as fast as we could go and then we went back to the vacant lot to play ball and when we had just got started the girls said they were going over to see the twins bathed. Girls are certainly funny the way they like to see things get washed. If they don't watch out they will grow up to be like my aunt and want to wash everything.

When we had played a while we all went over to Feeble's to see how the twins were getting along and to see which one we thought was the meanest. Twins are just two appetites. Their mother feeds them and when they are full they go to sleep and when they are empty they put up a holler and get fed and go to sleep again.

We were having a good time till all at once Ebbie came through the room we were in and out the front door and skun out, and we all wondered what he had been doing, but we couldn't find anything wrong so we looked around for Banty and couldn't find him so we thought he had skun out too and we went away. And after we had all went Feeble's mother heard someone hollering like they were a long ways off, and the woman that is working for her looked all around, and then she went into a room where there is a big suitcase, and she opened it and there was Banty almost smothered. He said he had got in it and Ebbie had shut it, and that was all he knew. So we all went around to Ebbie's house and whistled and hollered for him, and when he looked out of the window and seen Banty he certainly did look pleased, and when he came out he said Banty laid down in the suit case to see if he would fit in it and he closed the lid and the lock snapped and he couldn't get it open so he skun out. He thought Banty was smothered and he would be hung. It was lucky for Banty that he could holler. If he had been deef and dumb he would be in the suit case yet, and then maybe we would get to be real pallied barriers. Ebbie asked us to not tell his mother. We aren't tattletails hanging on the bull's tail.

SAM

BY FREEMAN LINCOLN

(Copyright, Freeman Lincoln)

CHAPTER 12
Through the Wars

IT was not Freddy, however, who was calling, but a friend who wanted to wish her happiness upon her engagement. The friend with any encouragement would have talked indefinitely, but Sam did not want to talk. She pleaded being very busy, at last, and hung up the receiver.

All morning long the telephone continued to ring, and each time Sam answered it eagerly, only to be disappointed. The whole world wanted to converse with her. It seemed, except the one person who mattered. No word came from him.

By 12 o'clock she admitted to herself that she was beaten. It was evident that she was not going to see Freddy again, or even have the consolation of hearing his voice. The incident was closed, apparently, and probably it was a good thing. What was the old saw about the mercy of the surgeon's knife? She decided to answer just one more call and then to leave the receiver off its hook.

The next call was not from Freddy, nor was it from one of her well-wishing friends. It was from one of the more sensational of the city's newspapers. There was a report, the voice said, that young Mr. Alderson had been married the day before in Elkton. Was this true? Was it an elopement? Who was the girl?

Sam merely said: "I don't know."

She repeated the phrase monotonously five or six times. Then she laid the receiver carefully on the top of the table and walked out of the house.

Late in the afternoon both Fourth Alderson and Peak Abbott arrived at the stable.

Fourth came in a few minutes before Peak, and it was obvious that his good spirits of the morning had disappeared. He walked across the room slowly, took of his coat and hat, and turned toward the stairs.

He spoke to Sam over his shoulder. "You'll be interested to know Joan," he said with elaborate carelessness, "that my new daughter-in-law's father is a retail dealer in fish. From now on we'll be able to get all sorts of nice fresh fish at attractive prices."

"How do you know?" Sam inquired dully."

"Oh, it's all in the paper in my overcoat pocket. You can read it if you like There is an elaborate description of the fish business and all sorts of other interesting details about our two happily joined little families."

He walked up the stairs to the second floor and slammed the door heavily behind him.

Sam got up from her chair and went over to Fourth's overcoat, from which she extracted a bright green newspaper. She then went directly to the fireplace, tossed the paper without glancing at it between the andirons, and set it alight. She was sitting on her heels idly watching the bright flames when she heard Peak Abbott's voice behind her.

"Hello, Sam. What on earth are you doing?"

"Hello, Peak." She nodded without turning. "I'm burning a newspaper. Fourth says it has all sorts of interesting details about the fish business."

Peak put a hand under her elbow and lifted her to her feet. "Look here, Sam," he said gently, "you mustn't take this thing so hard. What do you care what that filthy sheet says, or what anybody says? The thing will be entirely forgotten in a month." He looked at her face and shook his head. "You look as though you'd been through the wars"

"Do I?" Sam attempted a smile. "Well, to tell you the truth," she said, "I feel as though I'd been through the wars—several of them. It isn't altogether Nelson, either. I've been terribly busy all day, and the telephone has been ringing steadily."

"I know." He was sympathetic. "What were the telephone calls about—you and me?"

"Yes." She nodded. "Dozens of people called to tell me how happy they are about it all. It was only natural that they should tell me, but they all used almost exactly the same words, and after a while—"

"I know. I've listened to the same sort of thing all day long, but to tell you the truth I rather enjoyed having people tell me how lucky I am. It made it seem more real, somehow." He smiled reminiscently. "Some people are peculiar—newspaper people especially."

"Are they?"

"Yes." He continued to smile. "Take what that fellow Munson had to say to me on the subject. It was typical."

"Oh." Sam turned her head away so that Peak could not see her face. "Did Freddy Munson know about our engagement?"

"Of course he knew. It was on the front page wasn't it?" He frowned. "By the way, Munson has quit the Express."

Sam kept her face turned away. "Really?"

"Yes. I met him in the elevator this afternoon. He had a suitcase in his hand and said he was on his way to New York on the next train."

Sam said quietly: "And Freddy Munson made some remarks about our engagement?"

"Oh, yes, I was going to tell you about that. It was amusing. He looked at me in that arrogant way of his and said, 'I hear you're engaged, Abbott.' I said, 'Yes. Aren't you going to congratulate me?'"

He paused. "And then?" Sam inquired in a small voice.

"Then came the funny part. Instead of making the usual remark, Munson just shrugged his shoulders and said, 'I'm not so sure that you are to be congratulated.'" Peak laughed. "Can you beat that? If I hadn't known newspaper people I might have thought that he meant some reflection on you He didn't, of course."

"Didn't he?"

"Certainly not. He just meant that anybody about to be married was open to consideration, and not congratulation. It's the old familiar cynicism, but I have a feeling that he was sincere."

"Probably he was."

Sam walked over to a chair and sat down. Involuntarily she put both hands over her face.

Peak started toward her. "What is it, Sam?" he asked anxiously
